

REDMAN USE AND CARE DISINFECTING YOUR GEAR

RedMan Training Gear

Proper care and cleaning is essential for protecting the life of your training gear, as well as the health of those wearing it. Disinfecting is recommended after each use, between users when gear is shared, whenever it comes into contact with blood or other body substances, and before storing. The Disinfectant Cleaner allows you to have a clean set of equipment every time you use it, therefore reducing the risk of transmitting blood borne HIV/AIDS, Hepatitis, and other pathogens.

In this guide, we will review how to properly clean your RedMan gear so you can continue using it in safe, reality-based simulations training.

HOW TO CLEAN YOUR GEAR

Pre-clean the gear to remove any blood or other body substances.

Spray the gear your cleaning solution.
(Mixture of bleach and water)

Leave wet for 10 minutes before wiping dry, or allow to air dry.

Wipe away any bleach residue.

Daily Cleaning

- Perspiration can cause deterioration of the coating.
- Equipment should be wiped down after use.

Monthly Cleaning

- Wash vinyl-dipped foam equipment, including straps, regularly with warm, soapy water.
- This will help keep equipment free of odors and
- Prevent deterioration of the coating from perspiration.
